Why Team Work

No man is an island. Having a team that works for a common vision is the greatest advantage. Read on to find out how you can promote teamwork at your workplace, if you are in charge of a team:

- Understand the benefits of teamwork. Any project you may be working on can actually be done in a quicker and more efficient way. Having team members means better inputs and suggestions.

- Make your team-members feel important: The key to a successful team is that everyone shares the same passion and focus to achieve the desired target/goal. And that can only happen when everyone on the team is aware that they all are individually important for the success of the team as a whole. Involve people in the project; give them all the information, the goal, deadlines (if any)

- Encourage inputs and suggestions: This would not only help establish a sense of purpose in everyone, but would also help as someone might come up with a suggestion to improvise which you may not even have thought of.

- Offer rewards and recognition (R&R). Everyone loves to be noticed for their hard work. That's where R&R sessions come handy. You can have certificates/awards distributed for members who have been instrumental in the team's success. This also acts as a motivator for others to try and achieve that award which means they would work harder at their individual roles in the team.

- Delegate responsibilities: Again, if you're heading the project, it's always a great idea to delegate. That not only means less work for you, but also shows that you trust other people in the team enough to entrust them with some key responsibilities. It's a great confidence booster and you might actually stumble upon people who have great leadership qualities or methods of working in a team which can help everyone.

Colours 2013 Inter-school and Inter-college Cultural Festival

Fun & frolic moments for students at cultural festival at CT Group of Institution

It was fun and frolic time for more than a thousand students who participated and witnessed various events in cultural festival "COLOURS 2013" organized at CT Group of Institutions campus. In this two-day festival, teams from more than 90 schools and colleges from all over Punjab participated in various literary, cultural and fine arts events. The various events included quiz, rangoli, mehndi, essay writing, poster making, cartooning, face painting, and dance to the tune, fancy dress and folk song (solo). Some technical events like computer programming and debugging were also included.

The overall theme of the festival was 'Colours of Life'. Overall trophy among colleges was bagged by Guru Nanak Girls College, Model town, Ludhiana in inter-college category and Police DAV Public School Jalandhar in inter-school competitions. Sandeep Riat, Managing Director, Akal Springs limited and the best youngest entrepreneur of Punjab was the chief guest during prize distribution cer-

cessful personalities, he reiterated that courage and valour to compete comes through disciplined life and commitment towards the given task. He urged the students to identify the skills in emony of inter-college competitions. While congratulating the students for exhibiting their skills in various events, Bhupinder Singh Begowal, President, Zila Parishad expressed happiness over the fact that the zing and zeal to participate and compete has not diminished among the youth and felt assured that the future of India is secure in the hands of young generation. Giving examples of various successful personalities, them and strengthen them with hard work. While thanking the guests and participants, Dr Manoj Kumar, group director advised the students to make their vision and viewpoint about their life and career clear. The capability to compete encourages the students to develop far sightedness in their profession of choice, he said. Education is not complete with merely book reading rather participation in extra-curricular activities is equally important. He emphasized that Colours 2013 festa is a prism, where schools and colleges students find an array of events and activities to participate in and get valuable recognition.

While inaugurating the festival, Charanjit Singh Channi, chairman, CT Group of institutions said that Colours 2013 festival, an annual fixture at CT INSTITUTIONS, aims to provide a big platform to the budding art performers so that the urge in them to achieve the career target gets strengthened. Personality is not just a collection of traits, but should get recognized as a package of talent and skills apart from subject knowledge, he advised. Such festivals produce winners and gainers only and no one goes as loser, he emphasized.

What is the role of the parents? It becomes clearer when we think of our own parents and their influence on us as a person. Parents are the fountains of our lives. They are our precious gems. They are the sun and moon in our world, in our family. It's effortless to take our parents for granted. We forget the sacrifices they've made for us, and the effort it takes to raise happy, healthy children. Be regardful, and appreciate all the things that your parents do for you from day to day, month to month, year to year

We should respect our Parents

Remember that your parents love you more than anything else in the world, have high expectations of what they want you to achieve because they believe in you and want to see you be at your best as you become an adult.

When at times you feel that your parents don't listen or don't take you seriously, take a moment to think about what you want them to know and discuss your problems calmly with them and make sure you listen to their side of the story. Avoid arguments with them even if sometimes they seem unfair. Your parents make a lot of sacrifices for you, so reward their efforts with gratitude, obedience and a positive respectful attitude.

If you have younger siblings, help them with their homework and their chores, be a model of good behavior for them and try to encourage their obedience to you just as you are obedient to your parents. This will help build a strong and loving family structure for your whole family.

Parents are also very important in children's education. They are an example, probably the most important, for becoming an adult. We all are, in certain way, very similar to our parents; we all have behaviours, or tastes, or hobbies that we learnt from our parents. It's important to remember this when we have our own child; he's going to imitate our many things, no matter they are good or bad things. As parents we have to realize the responsibility we have of teaching our sons and daughters the best we can.

Remember that one of the most significant things you can do for your parents is to be a loving person. Parents by nature need to know and feel that their children have a great love for them. Be affectionate and give them just as many hugs and kisses as they give you, and do it as often as you wish. There never need be a special occasion reserved for doing this. Love costs nothing, and you can and should want to give it freely. It's what all parents hope and wish for from their beloved children, and I promise you this, the warm feeling you get in your heart for such acts as these last a lifetime.

A special seminar on the occasion of "Vigilance Awareness Week" held at CT Group of Institutions

Mr. Kulwant Rai, DSP Vigilance Bureau Jalandhar briefing up the audience during Vigilance Awareness Week

The country-wide observance of "Vigilance Awareness Week" in the last week of October every year is promoted by the Central Vigilance Commission of India, to reaffirm their commitment to promote vigilance concepts & to re-dedicate themselves to the cause of fighting against corruption. In order to make people aware about the menace of corruption, a special seminar on the occasion of "Vigilance Awareness Week" was organized at CT Group of Institutions wherein Mr. Kulwant Rai, DSP Vigilance Bureau Jalandhar Headquarter graced the event & presented his views. He was accompanied by the distinguished officials of Vigilance Bureau Jalandhar & the officials of CT institutions. As many as 300 students & faculty members attended the seminar.

Speaking on the occasion Mr. Kulwant Rai said, "Corruption cannot be significantly come down until or unless all the stakeholders participate in vigilance work. Government, ministries, departments, other agencies, PSUs, banks, private sectors & civil society at large are required to get involved in the whole gamut of vigilance processes. If public supports the department, we can easily shunt it out from the roots. Despite we have made various measures to check such practices, even then people don't assist the concerned department. On this specific day we wish to draw the attention of the countrymen to be alert about corruption & help us in the improvement of the country's anti corruption efforts." Dr. Manoj Kumar Group Director CT Group of Institutions conveyed his special thanks to the team of Vigilance Bureau Jalandhar Headquarter for sharing the valuable views to curb the evil of corruption.
